The verb vault

Yesterday, Mia hurried to school. She carried her heavy bag, greeted her friends and laughed all the way to class before opening her maths book.

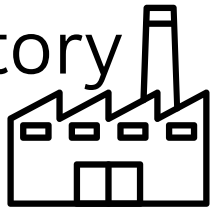

Highlight all of the verbs in this small paragraph

Sentence surgery

The Grammar Goblin has ruined this sentence.
last saturday my cousin jack and i visited london we saw big ben and ate ice cream

Rewrite it correctly below:

Expanded noun phrase factory

The goblin has stolen all the interesting words!
Turn each noun into an expanded noun phrase.

- dragon
- castle
- river

Fronted adverbial maze

Add a fronted adverbial to the beginning of each sentence.

1. _____, the owl swooped silently through the trees.
2. _____, Mia searched for the hidden key beneath the old bridge.
3. _____, the frightened rabbit darted into its burrow.
4. _____, the children tiptoed past the sleeping dragon.
5. _____, the mysterious door slowly creaked open.

The relative clause rescue

The Grammar Goblin has torn each sentence into two pieces. Your job is to put them back together using a relative clause. Use one of these relative pronouns:
who • which • whose • where

The explorer found an old map.

It was hidden inside a dusty chest.

✏️ Rewrite as one sentence.

_____

_____

The girl won the spelling competition.

She practised every evening.

✏️ Rewrite as one sentence.

_____

_____

Final case

Early one misty morning, Ava packed her backpack and quietly crept out of the house. She was searching for a hidden treasure, which had been lost many years ago, deep inside the ancient forest. Although the path looked dark and frightening, she continued walking because she was determined to succeed. Suddenly, a tiny robin landed on a nearby branch and sang a cheerful song. The bird, whose bright red feathers shimmered in the sunlight, seemed to be guiding her towards an old wooden bridge. Carefully, Ava crossed the bridge before discovering a small, rusty key beneath a large moss-covered rock. She smiled proudly because she knew she was one step closer to finding the treasure.

fronted adverbials

relative clauses

adverbs

C
R
L
E
E
V